Mrs. J. C. Badger has just received word from her son, Lieutenant Max G. Badger, that he has arrived overseas . . . Mrs. Badger presumes her son is somewhere in Ireland or England . . . first she had a notice from the War Department of his safe arrival . . . that was not long after that last big convoy reached Ireland . . . but now come the more personal messages direct from her son . . . one a cablegram and the other a letter . . . strangely, they were both sent the same day and they were both received the same day . . . either the cable service must be awful slow or the mail service very fast.

There are any number of men from Washington C. H. in foreign service now . . . and word of the safe arrival is given by their families to the Record-Herald nearly every day . . . and, by the way, we certainly appreciate a call on any bit of news concerning the men in the service . . . they all have friends here who read the Record-Herald and are anxious to hear about them . . . but, what I was getting around to is one of the little sidelights in Lt. Badger's letter . . . he told his mother he would like to have some candy, peanuts and chewing gum . . . a perfectly normal Yankee desire . . . but, I had supposed Uncle Sam had supplied all of the camps with these tidbits . . . don't suppose it would do much good to try to send them to the boys overseas, though . . . the transports are pretty well loaded with what might be termed necessities of war . . . can't risk many ships to carry such through the submarine blockade.

E. L. Clark, residing at Cook Station, received a shocking little surprise Tuesday.

It seems Clark discovered an automobile wheel (minus the casing) and a tube half-hidden under a culvert near his home and promptly decided that the automobile tire thief who has been operating in that community recently, had picked another victim and he felt sorry for the man who had lost the tire.

Clark decided he would notify Sheriff W. H. Icenhower of the find and upon reaching home thought he would also check his own car to see that all was well.

It was then he discovered his spare tire was gone and that the rim and tube he had found were his own.

Inasmuch as other tires of practically the same size have vanished in the Cook Station community recently, Sheriff Icenhower is checking and double checking to run down the thief.

You hear a lot now-a-days about the women taking over the men's jobs in the factories and in business and you have seen examples of this too, probably.

In Michigan last week I noticed more than ever how the women were taking the man's place. First of all, I saw a woman driving a taxi through the rain. Her cab was full and she drove on very unconcerned.

The next thing I noticed was the large number of women coming from defense factories when shifts changed. Some of them looked tired, but most of them didn't look as if they had been working hard for probably eight hours. They came from the factories laughing and talking to each other.

The third instance interested me most of all. It was in the outskirts of Detroit. The Dodge factory wasn't very far away and there were a lot of small trucks with small guns (I think they were anti-aircraft guns) mounted on the back. Then I saw that women were driving them . . . it was raining hard then, too . . . and the little trucks didn't have any top . . . but a woman drove every one of them . . . they weren't real young either . . . they all wore slacks and some did not even wear a raincoat . . . one had on a pink and blue straw hat . . . one of those you can get at the Fair . . . they call them Chinese coolie hats, I think . . . I don't know where they were going but none of them seem to mind the rain.

At a filling station in Marion a girl manned the pump . . . she was more polite than most filling station operators and didn't forget to check anything.

Farmers Selling Grain as

FUTURE PRICES DEPRESSED

Grain in Many Places Is Being Piled on Ground
Until More Bins Put Up

By WILLIAM FERRIS
CHICAGO, July 18.—(P)—Producers in the southwest have been selling large amounts of wheat in the open market in recent weeks, grain men said today, despite the fact that such sales can be made only at substantially lower prices than the government's loan program.

Because of the loan program, heavy supplies of wheat normally are held off the market and therefore the nation's total stocks of the grain generally are not much of a market factor. When producers, for one reason or another, offer liberal supplies in the open market, however, this has a direct bearing on prices.

Growers are selling wheat as much as 15 cents a bushel under the government loan rate, traders said. Mills and elevator interests have been liberal buyers of this free grain, and this, in turn, has resulted in hedging pressure against future contracts.

Hedging sales were an important factor in the grain pits this week, along with liquidation by

Hillsboro and Greenfield Cited
By Leaders

COLUMBUS, July 18.—(P)—The Ohio CIO council announced today it would continue efforts to organize small town industries despite what it described as acts of violence against union organizers in Hillsboro and Greenfield.

"The right to organize and bargain collectively is in effect in the small towns of this state as well as the large cities and, of course, whenever we get a call for assistance our organizers will follow through," said a resolution adopted by the council's executive board meeting here.

The council reported that organizers were forcibly evicted from Hillsboro and beaten up in Greenfield last May.

Another resolution said the CIO would make no political endorsement for the Aug. 11 primary.

Pay Boost To Be Sought
For All Steel Workers

By MARBEN GRAHAM
PITTSBURGH, July 18.—(P)—The CIO United Steel workers union moved rapidly today to make industry-wide the war labor board's award of 44 cents a day increase in pay for 157,000 employees of four "little steel" companies, after a 125-man policy committee accepted the decision upon President Roosevelt's plea for "co-operation" in his anti-inflation efforts.

Philip Murray, president of both the CIO and USW, said telegrams were dispatched to heads of the "little steel" group—Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Inland—asking immediate resumption of contract negotiations. These were broken off last February when an impasse

British Drive in Egypt Slowed

LOOKS UNIMPORTANT, BUT BATTLE RAGES HERE

The deserted railroad station and the half a dozen small buildings, above, don't look worth fighting for, but they make up El Alamein, where history is being made in the battles that are raging nearby between the British and Axis forces on the Egyptian desert. It was here that the British succeeded in halting the Axis drive.

Rommel's Axis Forces Counter-attack So Viciously in El Alamein Sector That Allies Forced To Yield Some Gains—Air Activity Over Desert Intense

CAIRO, July 18.—(P)—British troops on the northern sector of the El Alamein front drove southward yesterday but were counter-attacked twice by Marshal Edwin Rommel's Axis forces and compelled to give up some of the ground they gained, British headquarters announced today.

On the central front, where New Zealand troops hold the eastern end of the Ruweisat Ridge, an attack by motorized infantry was repulsed, a communique said. There also was activity on the southern end of the 40-mile British line about 75 miles west of Alexandria.

Air activity was intense over the battle front, especially in the central sector, and British fighters shot down five Axis aircraft.

The Axis forces were reported to have suffered heavy losses in two unsuccessful counter-attacks in the last 36 hours.

Big American Bombers in Action Against Germans
Pressing Tank Assault

HITLER SACRIFICES MEN

Nazis Forced To Shift Full Weight of Onslaught from Industrial Centers

By EDDIE GILMORE
MOSCOW, July 18.—(P)—American-made Douglas Boston bombers roared into the titanic struggle to stem the Germans in the Don basin today as the onrushing Nazi tanks, preceded by parachutists, veered southward in their drive across the Don Steppes below Millerovo.

(The Douglas Boston is a two-engine light attack bomber carrying a crew of three or four men. It is the type chosen by the United States Army Air Forces for their first raid on German-held western Europe July 4. It is extensively used by the British RAF but how widely it is used on the Russian battlefield has not been disclosed.)

While the Germans continued to press their thrust in the south, the Red Army, striking savagely back in the battle of Voronezh, on the north flank of the Don front, reported recapture of five communities and a successful surprise counter-attack against German garrisons protecting Don River crossings in that area.

The Moscow radio reported Nazi troops had fled back across the river south of the city, pursued by counter-attacking Soviet troops who engaged the Germans early this morning on the high west bank.

The danger to Voronezh still was great.

The Germans, who broke into the city's approaches last week, were clinging to every building and trying to erect barricades.

South of the city, fresh troops were reinforcing the badly mauled Hungarian seventh division. But the Russians expelled the invaders, Red air squadrons cooperating with tanks, artillery and infantry aground.

The heavy German forces below Millerovo appeared aiming toward the Moscow-Rostov railway in the direction of Rostov, toward the way-stations of Likhaya, Sulin and Shakhty.

Dispatches stressed that German planes were bombing cities, towns and villages repeatedly before the advancing mechanized hordes.

From the active theaters came reports of 4,300 more German casualties.

Tank-led Soviet infantrymen were declared to have gained ground in violent combat in the Voronezh area despite the Germans' effort to "hold on to their positions at all costs."

A stiffening of defenses across the hot, level grain fields within the big bend of the Don was implied, even while Soviet foot troops fell back again before the armored vanguards of a 1,000,000-man army massed by Field Marshal Gen. Fedor Von Bock.

Major fighting in that area was reported centered not southeast of Millerovo, as it had been for three weeks, but south—in the direction of Rostov, a Russian bastion before the Caucasus oil fields.

Definite Red Army advantages were indicated in the 10-day-old battle of Voronezh, 300 miles south of Moscow.

The Soviet radio said Russian soldiers pushed the Germans back in disorder in several places, recaptured two communities and pursued routed detachments across the Don south of the city to fight on over fields piled high with Nazi dead.

The 22nd German regiment was reported wiped out, adding to the tens of thousands of invaders killed.

Russian counterattacks were increasing in number and ferocity in the Voronezh area, dispatches said.

Commencement Exercises
For Air Commandos To Be at Lockbourne

COLUMBUS, July 18.—(P)—The first class of glider pilots—commandos of the air—will be graduated Sunday, without ceremony from the new Lockbourne Army Air Base, Maj. R. F. Burnham, the school's training director, announced today.

Major Burnham declined to disclose the number of graduating pilots but said the class was small in comparison with those to be turned out later in the summer.

The initial graduates began their training at Lockbourne July 6 after four weeks of preliminary instruction elsewhere.

With the exception of one commissioned officer, Capt. Gilbert M. Slaughter of Baker, La., the graduates of the school will receive ratings of staff sergeant.

A second class began instruction last Monday and a third group will enroll next Monday, Major Burnham said.

Man Killed and Two Cafes Robbed
As Outlawry Flares Up Near Dayton

DAYTON, July 18.—(P)—A man trying to halt the escape of three masked cafe robbers was slain by a shotgun blast early today at nearby Alexandersville.

Everett "Ab" DeWeese, 34, was shot in the head by one of the trio, who obtained $280 in a robbery at the cafe of Arnold Wehner, six miles south of Dayton on the Dixie Highway.

DeWeese, visiting next door to the cafe, saw the bandits leave the rear door of the establishment. They carried shotguns and were masked with handkerchiefs.

Armed with a pistol, DeWeese ran outside and tried to stop them. As he approached the trio, one gunman opened fire and felled him with a single blast.

The bandits fled in an automobile and 45 minutes later another cafe robbery was reported at Miamisburg, eight mile south of here.

DeWeese, superintendent of a nursery garden in Dayton, was widely known in sports circles. He formerly played with the Dayton Triangles, a professional football team.

He was visiting Bernard Broadbeck, who fired one charge from a shotgun as the bandits sped from the Wehner Cafe.

Wehner told police the trio entered as the place was being cleaned, about 3:15 A. M. He was robbed of $200 and two customers, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Folks, were relieved of $80.

TRIAL OF SABOTEURS
ONLY HALF FINISHED

Prosecution Is Completed
Against Four Spies

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(P)—With evidence completed against only four of the eight alleged Nazi saboteurs, the government today began presentation of its case against the remaining prisoners, making it clear the trial would require much more time than was generally expected.

Photographs of explosives, abrasives and other articles which the prosecution contended were to have been used by the Nazis to hamper American war production, confronted the four who were brought to the Florida coast by submarine.

The group included Edward John Kerling, Herbert Haupt, Hermann Neubauer and Werner Thel. Neutime, the four who landed by U-boat on Long Island, George John Dasch, Ernest Peter Burger, Heinrich Harm Heinke and Richard Quirin, awaited opportunity to present some defense before the military commission.

PAYMASTER ROBBED

CINCINNATI, July 18.—(P)—J. Thorpe Ranshaw, paymaster at the Stacey Manufacturing Company, was robbed of a $5,000 pay roll by two men. An auto with a cash drawer on the rear seat was found abandoned later, in suburban Bond Hill.

War Brings Big Profits

Chairman Vinson of Georgia announced the committee was going to insist that the government re-negotiate Army and Navy contracts to recapture "commission fees paid to war brokers."

Judge Gilbert Bettman
Of Supreme Court Dies

CINCINNATI, July 18.—(P)—Judge Gilbert Bettman of the Ohio Supreme Court is dead at 60.

Judge Bettman died last night at Jewish Hospital where he had been under treatment for three weeks for a heart ailment.

Elected to Ohio's highest court for a six-year term that began in January, 1941, Bettman missed most of this year's sessions in Columbus after being stricken with heart disease in February.

Chief Justice Carl V. Weygant of the Ohio Supreme Court expressed regret upon learning of Bettman's death, noting that upon coming to the bench Judge Bettman "plunged into the discharge of his duties with a zeal that overtaxed his strength."

For two terms, from 1929 to 1932, Judge Bettman was Ohio attorney general under former Gov. Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati Republican.

He was a candidate for the U. S. Senate in 1932, but was beaten by Robert J. Bulkley, Cleveland Democrat.

Born in Cincinnati, October 31, 1881, the son of a clothing manufacturer, Bettmann was

EAST LIVERPOOL, July 18.—(P)—Vital war industries in a 50-mile Ohio River valley area were hidden for 31 minutes behind an almost impenetrable curtain of darkness last night in the Midwest's most extensive blackout.

W. J. Burns, assistant director of the State Defense Council, who viewed the test from the air, said the Tri-State area was blacked out so effectively "that visibility of the river could not be considered a dangerous factor in case of a raid."

Major Charles S. Miller, Army liaison officer, asserted results were "very satisfactory and industries could not have done a better job of blacking out."

The alarm was sounded at 9:58 P. M.

Only navigation lights, airplane beacons and radio tower signals, left burning purposely, and a few residence and business lights marred the shrouding, Burns asserted.

Wenchow Is Retaken from

CHUNGKING, July 18.—(P)—The Japanese garrison at recently-captured Wenchow, a port in South Chekiang province, has been forced to retire under heavy Chinese pressure, the central news agency reported today.

Chinese forces were reported re-entering the city with the Japanese retreating toward Julian 13 miles to the south.

The fall of Wenchow to the Japanese had been acknowledged by the Chinese command earlier this week following a series of enemy operations which completed an arc from Hangechow on the north to Wenchow in the southeast.

In north China, central news said the Japanese had captured Hsiaoqi, in central Shansi province, after an engagement of several days.

WOODEN WHEAT BINS WILL RELIEVE STORAGE HERE

DOZEN ORDERED TO TAKE CARE OF SURPLUS GRAIN

All Old Wheat Stored Is To Be Moved Into Special Bins

Twelve additional wheat bins—constructed of wood—are en route to Washington C. H. to care for the remainder of the government wheat, 1941 crop, in storage here.

This information was given out Saturday by AAA Chairman Harry Silcott, who has been in charge of providing space for the old wheat owned by the government; so, just that much more space would be available for the new crop.

The dozen wooden bins will come knocked down so they can be readily assembled. Each bin will hold nearly 2,000 bushels of wheat, and the dozen will care for approximately 24,000 bushels.

This means that room will be available in the Gwinn Milling Co. elevators here for just that much more of the 1942 crop.

Incidentally, wheat storage in elevators practically came to an end in the county Friday, and farmers were compelled to provide their own storage.

In a few instances cash wheat was bought and shipped, thus eliminating storage. Shipping facilities are decidedly limited however, by reason of scant storage space elsewhere.

Steel bins erected by the government, on the old fair grounds, had provided storage for 151,000 bushels before the wooden bins were ordered.

SOME REPORT HALF OF CROP WAS LOST

Rains and Wind Blamed for Big Decrease

Chief cause of the low yields in many wheat fields in Fayette County, according to observers, was the continued rains and winds which caused the wheat to fall.

In some instances farmers lost practically half of their crop in this way, as the combines could not pick it up.

Harry Silcott, County AAA Chairman, figures that his loss was one fourth of his crop, possibly more.

Numerous claims are being presented by farmers who held government wheat insurance, for adjustments on their crop.

GOOD WHEAT YIELDS COMING TO LIGHT

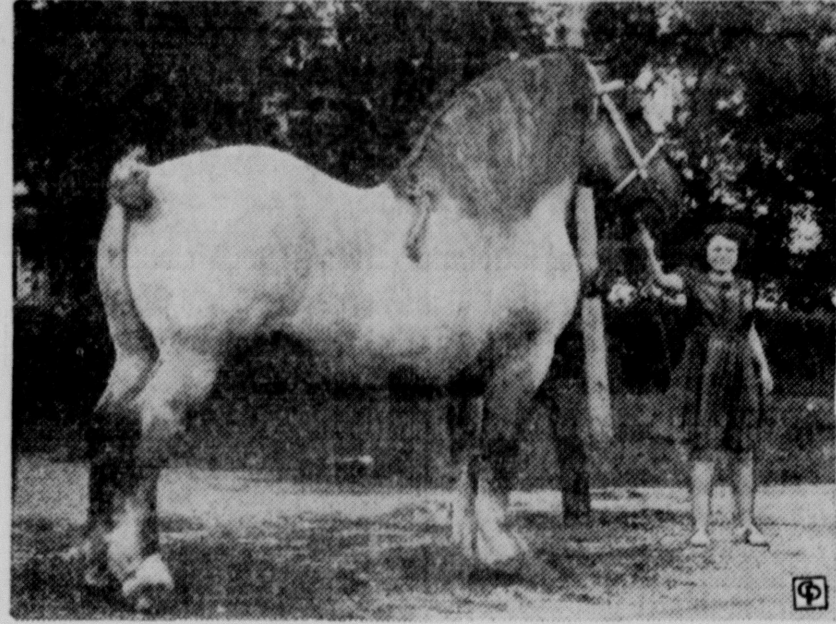

Yields Up to 35 Bushels Are Reported This Week

Three good wheat yields have come to light during the past few days—part of the many in decidedly "spotted" yields of the county this season.

Walter Sollars had a crop that averaged 35 bushels to the acre and Charles Griffith, residing a few miles north of Washington C. H., had 53 acres that yielded 32 bushels to the acre.

County Agent W. W. Montgomery was also well pleased with his yield this season—30 bushels to the acre on 24 acres.

WAR STOPS BIGGEST HORSE'S TOURS

Brooklyn Supreme, above, 3,200-pound Belgian stud, regarded as the biggest horse in the world, no longer is touring rural fairs and shows. Now he has to remain at his stable near Boone, Ia., because war restrictions have made it impossible to procure tires for trailer in which he used to ride. The giant horse stands 19½ hands high, wears a 40-inch collar and has a girth measurement of 10 feet 2 inches.

Livestock Price Rises Believed Nearing Top

The livestock market has just about reached peak prices in the opinion of Frank DeWitt, veteran Fayette County stock buyer and market analyst, who makes cautious predictions that while fed cattle are still strong, the common kinds will hit a slump in the fall. Lower prices are ahead for sheep, he thinks, and he believes that hogs would take a price drop without market support in the form of government purchases for service men and lease-lend.

In the following article, in which the opinions expressed are entirely the writer's and do not necessarily reflect the views of this newspaper, DeWitt expresses

DOWN ON THE FARM

By THOMAS E. BERRY

GRASS FARMING — That briefly describes what I am doing this summer, especially with hogs. I have some stockers on a heavy bluegrass pasture, with a lot of white clover in it, that I am slopping twice a day with a ration made by adding 300 pounds of a commercial protein supplement to 1,700 pounds of corn apiece and plenty of pure water and shade near them all the time. The slop is thin and has only about half a gallon of the grain ration in a two gallon bucket, but it has a small handful of salt in it that improves the palatability, and adds a necessary mineral.

You can almost see these stockers grow, and the feed cost is very low.

A PRACTICAL FEEDING PLAN — This is a practical summer feeding plan that my father and grandfather used for many years at a time when three cent hogs was the usual thing and four cent hogs was a high price.

"You get most of the feed from the pasture," I have often heard them say, "and if it is clover pasture it is hard to beat it for growing hogs in summer and for fattening them out."

While hogs are high now, as compared to what they were then and there is a small margin of profit in raising or fattening them, it is still good business to have plenty of legume pasture in the feed lots. If you don't have this they will do well on bluegrass pasture, for it is balanced for livestock and is very high in vitamins and essential minerals.

This is especially true if you lime the bluegrass pasture at least once in three years, and apply about 250 pounds per acre of super phosphate. The best time to apply super-phosphate is very early in March. Most men like to lime the pastures in mid-summer after harvest, when the ground is dry, and they have a little extra time.

A DEFENSE FOR THE FENCE PUSHER—Mrs. Berry recently called my attention to a defense of the fence pushing cow or horse. "Did you know that the grass growing along the roadside, where it gets lime from the dust of passing traffic is higher in minerals and vitamins than that in the fields along the roads, and that this grass is probably more palatable and more valuable in the ration, than the grass in the field," she asked.

Then she told me of a report from some reliable agricultural service that she heard on the radio. It was new information to me but very interesting and we thought of value to our readers.

Write some of the corn belt experiment stations or if you live in the west or southwest, where we have many readers, get in touch with the experiment station in your state, and ask them for their recommendation about improving the quality of your pastures. They will gladly give you this information free or any charge. Someone has well

LARD YIELD CUT BY PACKERS AS PORK PRICE UP

Comparatively Heavy Hogs Are Coming To Market However, Reports Show

By WILLIAM FERRIS (Wide World News Service) CHICAGO, July 18—Although hogs coming to market today are comparatively heavy, trade sources point out that the yield of lard per hog has been smaller than in recent years.

In April, the yield was 30.3 pounds per hog, in May 31.3 pounds and is estimated at 31.7 pounds for June. A year ago the yield per hog was running three pounds above the current rate, and, in the opinion of market analysts, a yield of 36 pounds or more could be expected from the weight of hogs now being marketed.

The reason for the decline in the opinion of traders, is the relatively low price of lard against that of pork meat. Processors, they added, find it profitable to reduce as much as possible the amount of fat material being turned into lard.

One analyst said if the lard yield per head from federally inspected hogs during the current marketing year had been equal to the ten-year average yield from 1921 to 1930, lard production in the last nine months would have been increased by 160,000,000 pounds.

Declining against the seasonal trend, the supply of lard and rendered pork fat on hand on July 1, was 15,448,000 pounds less than at the start of June. With the agricultural marketing administration making large purchases for lend-lease export, traders expect further sharp supply reductions the next few months.

Hog receipts continued small this week. Prices gained about 25 cents to hit $15 on Friday, equal with the peak for the past 16 years. Sows comprised between 26 to 31 percent of the supply and were generally weaker.

Supply abatement stimulated steer trade with grain-fed steers and yearlings 25 to 50 cents higher. Cows were under pressure and mainly 25 cents lower. Spring lambs closed steady to 15 cents lower.

Another of the parasites attacking the outside of sheep is the sheep nasal fly. The flies deposit their young larvae around the nostrils of the host, the sheep, and from this point these larvae forms crawl up into the nasal cavity. It is usually stated that the larvae live in the animal from eight to ten months, passing the winter season in this stage and then drop out to perpetuate in the ground for 3 to 6 weeks, or some may leave in the autumn and hibernate as pupae. In South Africa and other warm climates the flies infect sheep all the year around. In Texas, the larvae development in sheep

The part members of the Fayette Grange will take in the forthcoming Fair were discussed at considerable detail at the last regular meeting held in the Eber School house.

Patriotic decorations were used in the dining room where the customary refreshments were served. There were red, white and blue streamers on the long table for which a bowl of red, white and blue flowers was the centerpiece. Tiered candelabra on each side had red, white and blue candles in them.

RARE MEDICINAL PLANTS MAY BE GROWN IN OHIO

War Cuts Off Supply of Vitally Important Drug Plants

Fayette County farmers and greenhouse operators may some day be growing medicinal plants formerly coming from now occupied sections of Europe and Asia.

First harvest from some of the 26 varieties of medicinal plants now being grown experimentally by Ohio State University's Department of Horticulture occurs this month. The results may tell the story of the possibilities for growing these badly needed medicinal plants in Ohio, to help meet the growing shortage of vital imported drugs.

Particular interest centers on the possibility of raising the Belladonna plant in Ohio, this plant, resembling tobacco and cured in a similar manner, furnishing two alkaloids that are used to relieve pain and dilate the pupil of the eye.

Professor Alex Laurie of Ohio State believes that cultivation of Belladonna may prove commercially profitable in Ohio.

About 2000 acres of Belladonna are under cultivation in the United States this year, 400 of them in Ohio.

Ohio State's pharmacy college is assaying the medicinal qualities of plants being grown at the university.

Hereford Cattle Group Here for Annual Picnic

Hereford cattle are coming to be quite the thing in Fayette County, by the same token Fayette County is coming to be quite something to Hereford cattle.

More than 300 Hereford breeders and feeders and their families gathered at the Baldwin Rice farm in the southern part of the county for the annual picnic and barbecue of the Ohio Hereford Association. They came from all over Ohio and what made the meeting so outstanding was the fact that it was not what is commonly known as a "public meeting"—those who gathered under the trees in the grove back of the big white Rice home were actively interested in Herefords.

A short business session was on the calendar but it lasted longer than business sessions of former picnics because so much time was devoted to discussion of the Hereford show, which is to be one of the features of the Fayette County Fair the last week of this month.

At noon the barbecue pit was opened and Dr. C. W. Gray and Dr. D. G. Kays, department heads in the College of Agriculture at Ohio University, in

GIRLS FIND PLENTY OF JOBS

Few Washington C. H. or Fayette County young women who want to work are without a job just now. Most young women, especially those who show some snap, initiative and indicate that they are really willing to work, are having little or no trouble just now in landing jobs. In fact many of them are more perplexed as to which job they are to take among several that are usually available.

It is true that today the "welcome" mat is on display for women in almost every business, industry and profession. War industries are glad to get women to do men's work. White collar girls are being welcomed into government jobs. Even the army has decided that it can make use of women—so there is the WAAC to relieve a soldier of some non-combatant duty.

Everywhere women are welcome. Never before have girl graduates found doors opened so wide to them.

There is one thing they ought to remember. That is that they must make good in their jobs, give their employers no reason to wish they had men in their places.

They must make even the most prejudiced employers see that women can forget themselves in their jobs, can concentrate on their work, get along with their associates, and assume responsibility as well as men because women won't always have things their own way, as they do today. As soon as the war is over they will be in competition with men again for many jobs and any faults they show now as individual workers later may be held against them as applicants for such work in the future.

YOU ARE THE GOVERNMENT

With taxes a tremendously growing burden on every citizen in the United States, the people must take an increasing interest in all affairs of government, from the smallest school district to Congress itself.

Taking an interest in the affairs of government does not mean to merely sit back and kick after assessments have been levied. Instead, study the legitimate needs of government and sift them out of the thousand and one purely political items that have crept into public budgets.

The people must begin talking to or writing to their city councils, their local school boards, their county courts, their tax commissions, their state legislators—and last, but not least, their congressmen and senators who are today levying taxes which are taking the lion's share of the tax payments of every individual, every business and every industry.

Washington at a Glance

WASHINGTON—As I've previously had occasion to remark, Elmer Davis, rather recently appointed director of the Office of War Information, an old acquaintance of mine, never seemed to me to be particularly hard-boiled: If I'd been looking for about a 30-minute egg, I'd have picked Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board. From latest indications I judge I guessed correctly. Elmer had a little disagreement with the war department the other day and lost out—in the opening skirmish, at least Donald told both the war and navy departments where to get off and make his ukase stick, at least up to date. When a military court started to try that octet of Nazi spies and saboteurs caught by Uncle Sam's Coast Guard and secret service a short while ago, Elmer as a publicity man, felt that his organization ought to cover the proceedings. Accordingly he assigned a competent reporter to attend 'em. The scribe, arriving at the outer portal, couldn't get in. Elmer complained and was told to "go chase himself." If it had been the case of an ordinary newspaperman, this might not have been so peculiar, but it did seem a bit queer for a government agent to be so unceremoniously barred out. Never mind that, though. We come now to the Donald Nelson matter.

Flashes of Life

Old Tubs Serve for Emergency
BOWDOINHAM, Me.—(AP)—Two hand tubs, one of them built in 1798, have been recommissioned by Bowdoinhams fire department to augment a modern pumper during the war emergency. The ancient Phoenix, which Bowdoinhams has owned since 1805, has only one counterpart, and that was purchased by Henry Ford for his museum. The other hand tub, the Water Witch, is comparatively new.

Today's Horoscope
A birthday today means that a person has an alert mind, quietness of manner, a sunny disposition, refined and careful tastes, and a liking for literature and study. Such a person should show more affection toward loved ones, if he or she wishes the home life to be truly happy. Gain will come to this person during the next year through secret channels and in unexpected ways, and business will expand. Employers and superiors will prove helpful. Forge ahead. Born on this date a child will be greatly helped throughout life by employers, and those in authority, and success, good fortune and happiness are foretold. The intellectual faculties will be of a very high order.

Hints on Etiquette
If a young couple is married away from home, near the young man's Army camp, the friends at home should make it a point to send them wedding presents, just as if they had been invited to the wedding. No bride likes to forego the pleasure of receiving wedding gifts, just because her fiancé's country has need of him. Friends should "rally around" such a couple, figuratively speaking.

Horoscope for Sunday
Integrity, perseverance in effort, unusual physical and mental energy and a fondness for travel and life in the out-of-doors characterize the persons who have birthdays today. They have excellent health and the ability to work with great vigor and efficiency. During the next 12 months they will gain in several ways, and elders, relatives and strangers will greatly aid them. They should, however, guard against extravagance and over-generosity. The child who is born on this date will make a very successful and popular novelist, and will be ahead of the times. His or her intuitions will be remarkable and many fine traits will be evidenced.

know what you think about various measures proposed which deflate your pocket-book. They cannot know if you never express your opinions. A postcard message from a man on the soil, a workman in an industry or a small businessman struggling to meet the tax problems, is the best index of public thinking. There should be sacrifice and economy in government, just as there is sacrifice and economy and scrimping in every home in the land.

Let your public officials know how you feel on legislative and taxation policies that affect every job, every industry and every dime of savings. The future of representative government is in the hands of the people in more ways than one. Remember, you are the government. Don't expect it to be any better than the thought you contribute to it.

By Charles P. Stewart

And there are more imaginable explanations. The Army, though, is somewhat bugs on the subject of secrecy. Lots of the news it wants to keep under cover would be dandy publicity. Elmer Davis knows it. There probably are plenty of Nazi spies in the country who ought to be caught yet, but advertising 'em shouldn't be bad business. Elmer Davis' stunt is running 'em down. "Hush-hush," is the war department's policy. Secrecy a Warning It may be that the still loose guys will be tipped off and make a get-away unless they're warned—but why warn 'em, as they will be by so much so-called secrecy? It really isn't secrecy, because the more secretive it is the more it's advertising. The fact is that Elmer, with his broadcasts, is the ideal bird to scare the enemy. Let him publicize a fine batch of 'em as having been executed and it'll make 'em thoughtful. Suppress the news and it'll make no impression. How well profit by corks Elmer up is a problem. You'd think that the system would be to yowl it in head-letters. But what do war departments know about publicity? They exaggerate about their triumphs and alleged victories, but they don't give you the truth about everything. It's as true of ours as of the other fellows'.

Nature and Effects of Man's Sense of Taste

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
ALL OF OUR senses—sight, hearing, smell, feeling and taste itself combine to make a meal taste delicious. You go home at night and hear something sizzling in the kitchen and the sense of hearing gives you an anticipatory feeling of pleasure. The famous experiments of Pavlov, the Russian physiologist, Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.
proved that the sight of food caused digestive secretions to start to flow when the sight was pleasurable and also dried them up when the spectacle was disgusting. Smell probably enters into taste more than either of these senses—in fact, it is almost a part of taste itself. Just exactly what taste is, is quite as much of a mystery as what any of the other senses are. According to the physiologist there are four primary tastes, sweet, sour, salt and acid, and it can be proved by blindfolding a person and dipping a pledge of cotton in solutions of sugared water, salt, vinegar and acid, that the tongue is divided into areas which appreciate these tastes and none other. Mixture of Tastes But for most of us the pleasure of tasting an article of food does not depend upon its primary taste but upon a mixture of all of them. It would be hard for you to say whether such articles as meat and potatoes or bread and butter were sweet, sour, bitter or salt. Hot chocolate, if it is not sweetened too much, can be analyzed into the four primary taste sensations, but hot chocolate really gives pleasure more by its smell than by any of the elements of the sense of taste. Nobody is able to taste anything very much unless the mouth is moist or unless the article of food is moist. The taste buds in the mouth are pocketed in little wells and in order to reach them the article to be tasted must be in solution.

CHAPTER THIRTY
DIAN LAUGHED when her aunt said she didn't like being forced on Jerome Carr. "Now you know how it feels," she said. "Turnabout is fair play."
"I don't like playing second fiddle, either."
"There!" said Dian, stepping back to look the older woman over. "You look simply stunning."
"Don't change the subject, Dian."
"Oh, you mean about Jerome. Well, it's not often an aunt and her niece are rivals for the same man."
"I'm not a rival for Jerome, and you know it. I've been trying to get you to marry him for ages, and—"
"And now," Dian interrupted, "I'm going to try to get you to marry him. And don't look so cross! You know perfectly well, darling, that you've been dying for a chance to show off this frock. Beauty is just your color—it makes your hair look marvelous." She paused and sighed. "You're a darned handsome woman. I only hope I'm one half as attractive when I get to be your age."
"Humph!" Miss Martha said. "You always turn on the flattery, don't you, when you want your own way. Well, let me tell you, young lady, I'll go through this engagement with Jerome Carr, but that's all. From now on you take over. Understand?"
"Yes, Aunt Martha. Only suppose Jerome falls in love with you tonight."
"Of all the fool things to say! Why—"
"If he doesn't appreciate your charm, he's dumber than I think." Dian glanced at the time. "I must go get myself dolled up, now that I've got you looking like Park Avenue."
"The idea, refusing Jerome's invitation to help him entertain important guests—and going out with Claire and those two men who want to marry her!" Miss Martha was annoyed. "Sometimes I think you haven't got a brain in your head, Dian."
"That's where you're wrong, Aunt Martha," Dian said. "I have too many brains. That's why a girl like Claire gets all the nice men—and I face spinsterhood. Claire's heart rules, and never her head."
"Has she decided which man she wants?"
"No," said Dian. "Or so I gather. I haven't seen any of the trio since driving Bill out to the farm. But I hear Claire had them both over for tea."
"So that silly mother of hers could show off, I reckon."
"Perhaps."
"But I thought you said the four of you were to play around together."
"That's what I thought," said Dian. "But evidently Claire's changed her mind. I reckon my keeping Bill out at the farm so long riled her."
"And yet—in spite of Claire's fickleness and selfishness—you're still going to her dinner!" said Miss Martha. "I should think you'd have more pride than that."
"It's too late to back out," said Dian. "Besides, I feel like dancing and having fun. She gave her aunt a quick kiss. "You like Bill Rolins—you said so yourself."
"Yes, what little I saw of him, he seemed a right nice young man—but don't forget he came down here to marry that nit-wit, Claire Lester."
"I can't forget that," said Dian. "But I might as well get a little fun out of him while I can. You know, gather rosy memories for my old age."
"Stop talking nonsense, and go get dressed!" said Miss Martha. "How are you going to the club?"
"Paul's calling for me in his car," Dian replied. "We're all going out together. Bill's car is still laid up for repairs."
"I reckon I'll see you at the club," Miss Martha remarked. "The least you can do is have a dance or two with Jerome."
"He may not ask me."
"I'll see to that."
"Now, listen, Aunt Martha—no matchmaking, please."
"You forced me on him for the evening," Miss Martha retorted. "Turnabout's fair play. That's what you said a moment ago."
"All right, you win!"
A little later, from the window of her upstairs bedroom, Dian watched Jerome Carr assist her aunt into his bright and shining Packard. "They make a darned good-looking couple," she thought. And then she went on with her dressing.
She had meant it when she told her aunt she felt like dancing and having fun, and yet a strange heaviness lay upon her heart. She knew, of course, that she had no hold on Bill or Paul, and yet was a little hurt over the fact that neither one of them had gotten in touch with her all of yesterday, nor for two evenings. It also hurt to

Kathleen Burke Flees from Movie Type

By MARK BARRON
NEW YORK—Kathleen Burke, sultry eyed star of many movies with a jungle setting, is now basking in the peaceful, rural settings of Long Island and other haunts of the summer theaters trying to get rid of a trademark. Its the one the movies pinned upon her when they gave her the label of "The Panther Woman."
That title came to her as the winner of a nation wide contest of 60,000 girls and as her reward she was given the leading role in a film called "The Island of Lost Souls," a story that might be most quickly described as the adventures of a feminine Tarzan of the apes. True, it won her a movie career and made her an actress in a sarong, but it also attached that "Panther Woman" label to her although she subsequently managed to get into leading roles of such movies as "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back," "Rascals" and "Lives of a Bengal Lancer."
Now she has decided to do something definite about her career by changing her roles entirely in the summer theater at Great Neck, Long Island, just a few miles away from Broadway, and after a triumph in "Night Must Fall" she is preparing to open now in "Yes, My Darling Daughter." Both plays are far fetched from any sort of "Panther Woman" role.
In "Night Must Fall" she is an effective and repressed young woman who solves a murder mystery. In "Yes, My Darling Daughter" she is now rehearsing something even further removed from a "Panther Woman" atmosphere in that it is Mark Reed's giddy comedy about giddy females.
This is the story of Ann Whitman Murray, a belligerent advocate of woman's rights, who protests when she discovers that her daughter, Ellen, is leaving on a week end with Douglas Hall. Ellen, in rebuttal, produces some of her mother's autobiographical poetry which shows that "mama" also once had similar ideas in her Greenwich Village days.
In both "Night Must Fall" and "Yes, My Darling Daughter" Miss Burke reveals that she has much more varied talents than "The Panther Woman" label would confine her. She does good straight drama in one and ga-ga comedy in the other and further proves that she is her own best critic in an idle moment at dress rehearsals, she remarked, "I have to improve steadily as an actress. I've known that since I was a kid of 13 when I first realized that I had too many arms and knees."
And, although it may seem an odd step for an actress who abandons a good movie career to advance her training on the stage, she wants now to go back to an early page in her life.
"I was born in Hammond, Ind.," she said, "and my career on the stage began at age of 15 as soon as I got the notion out of my head that I could be a champion swimmer. So at 15, I was in Castle Park, Mich., and played the Jane Cowl role in 'Smilin' Through' and now I want to play that role again."
Well, nothing could be further from a "Panther Woman" role than the romantic lead in "Smilin' Through."

Delightful Party At Plantation Friday Night

One of the loveliest parties of the week's social calendar was enjoyed Friday evening, when twenty-seven members of the Ladies Circle of the GAR motored to the lovely country home, "The Plantation," on the Circleville Road, for an exceptionally delightful evening.

Mrs. Elizabeth H. Davis, assisted by her mother, Mrs. James H. Hendryx and Mrs. Mattie Littler, was again a charming hostess, for which she is always complimented, inviting the ladies to her lovely home.

The place was an ideal setting for the picnic supper, with the large shaded lawn, comfortably cool throughout the entire evening, despite the terrific heat in the city.

Hammocks, gay colored chairs and tables were attractive and arranged congenially over the rolling yard.

Everyone came filled with well-filled hampers, and the supper consisted of every good thing imaginable. One long table held the bountiful repast, from which the ladies filled their plates cafeteria fashion. The supper was particularly gay and enjoyable on the cooling lawn of the beautiful old home.

Informal visiting with the ladies viewing Mrs. Davis' Victory Gardens of vegetables and flowers, and games of croquet were enjoyed until a late hour.

Phi Beta Psi's Make and Sell Victory Corsages

Have you noticed how every dress, sweater, blouse or even a play suit, has been given that patriotic adornment of some trinket symbolizing Victory?

Almost every piece of jewelry you see whether on a person or on a counter is either of red, white and blue—or are pins of wings, a V—, a head of Uncle Sam—drums—anything suggestive of the good old American spirit!

In honor of National Hero Day, the Phi Beta Psi Sorority have made not only pretty but exceptionally dainty little corsages with the flowers, ten cent War Savings Stamps. Nine of them are prettily and effectively arranged, with green leaves and white stems giving it a color combination lovely on any outfit.

The members of the sorority have been on the streets of Washington C. H. both Friday and Saturday, selling these—and have had an unusually good response. On Friday evening, almost every shoulder displayed True American Patriotism!

Leadership Class
Mrs. C. Glass (Martha DeVoe) was a pretty young hostess when she invited the members of the Leadership Training Class of the First Presbyterian Church, to her home near Sabina, for a most pleasurable evening.

Elaborate plans had been made, with the attractive home with its spacious lawn an ideal setting. The bountiful fried chicken supper, so delicious, with the accessories that go with such a meal, were heaped on large platters and served from a long table on the cooling lawn.

Following the supper, the girls surprised Mrs. Glass a recent bride, with a miscellaneous shower, for which she made sweet responses.

The teachers, Mrs. Walter Patton and Mrs. S. A. Dewey, were also present.

Tanda Group
The Tanda Campfire group enjoyed a wiener roast and picnic at Priscilla Babbitt's home Thursday noon. The girls brought their own lunches and the hostess served the dessert. No meeting was held, for nearly all plans had been taken care of at the last meeting. The Tandas will be in the pageant at the County Fair, and hope to have a booth or sell refreshments also.

"Sergeant York" opens at the Fayette Theater on Sunday and continues through Tuesday for a return engagement. This widely heralded biographical tribute to one of the first World War's greatest heroes has been acclaimed one of the best pictures of the year. Gary Cooper stars in the title role.

Delightful comedy without a shadow of remorse will be on the Fayette Theater screen Wednesday, Thursday and Friday when Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor co-star in "Her Cardboard Lover." Placed in a fashionable winter resort on the Florida coast, the story is swift, light and unburdened with anything heavier than laughter, music and romance.

"Four Jacks and a Jill," a sparkling romantic comedy, studded with gay songs and spectacular dance numbers is to be the feature for Saturday at the Fayette Theater. Nimble-footed Ray Bolger and Anne Shirley head a notable supporting cast consisting of June Havoc, Desi Arnaz and Jack Durant among others. On the double bill also is "Land of the Open Range," with Tim Holt as the iron-fisted umpire of a turbulent land rush.

Palace Theater
All the glamor and romance of the old West lives again in "In Old California," to be shown at the Palace Theater on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday with Biny Barnes and John Wayne heading the cast. Placed against the setting of the California gold rush days, the picture deals with the efforts of a two-fisted young Bostonian to establish himself in business in the early days of Sacramento. "The Isle of Destiny" with William Gargan and June Lang will be the second feature.

What happened to the famous Jimmy Valentine twenty years after? This intriguing question is answered in "Affairs of Jimmy ed the belief that price ceilings will be broken.

LIVESTOCK PRICE RISES BELIEVED NEARING TOP UNDER FEDERAL BUYING

By FRANK DEWITT

Will price ceilings and rationing halt inflation? What will be the next breach in OPA food price ceilings?

The OPA price ceiling is a flop, meat rationing is a dream, one of those things that "can't be done," at least not by our present economists.

The price crisis is now at hand. The lifting of the ceiling for canned and dried fruits of the 1942 pack is the first breach in the line. Processors will be ordered to reserve stated portions of pack for later government purchase, the time and price pretty much up to the government.

Enforcement of price ceiling and rationing seems to be out. Congress is neither in the mood for creating an army of enforcers at enormous expense, nor arousing public ire.

Hogs would be in a weak position but for government pork needs. Uncle Sam is making the market by purchasing around one hundred million pounds of meat and lard weekly, and as time works along he will need more of both commodities.

Fed cattle are in a decidedly stronger position, although not noticeable locally. Common and otherwise undesirable cattle are headed for lower prices when the heavy fall movement gets in progress.

A shake-out is in progress in every market in the country. Lower prices are inevitable.

Fayette County Shepherd's Club

last only two and a half to three and a half months.

The young larvae are white or slightly yellow; when these forms become mature dark transverse bands develop on the dorsal aspects of the segments. The full grown larva is about 3 inches long tapering anteriorly, and ending with a flat surface posteriorly.

The flies cause great annoyance when they attack the sheep to deposit larvae, so that the animals stop feeding and become restless. They shake their heads or press their noses against the ground or in between other sheep. The larvae irritate the mucosa of the nose with their oval hooks and spines, causing a secretion of a mucus on which they apparently feed.

Infected sheep have a nasal discharge and sneeze frequently. Sheep appear to be conscious of the irritation caused by the larvae. The larvae upon being expelled soon develop into mature flies that propagate the cycle.

The larvae can be and is deposited on the sheep's nostrils all during the summer months up to the middle of October. After the larvae is deposited and crawls up into the nasal cavity there is little anyone can do to rid the sheep of them. By keeping the sheep nostrils thinly coated with pine tar the fly is prevented from laying the larvae on them.

The sheep infected are particularly irritated when the larvae are in the process of being expelled from the nasal passages. This takes place in the spring, after the sheep has harbored them all winter.

Old timers used to state in the spring that infected sheep had "grub in the head" and their method of dealing with it was to give the sheep a blow on the head with an axe to loosen the grub. This measure as one may readily see often removed the sheep from among the living as well as dislocating the larvae.

The moderns use chloroform which can be and often is equally as disastrous. In very rare cases has it ever been found that the nasal fly is fatal to the sheep. However, it does affect his comfort and therefore his prime condition. Use the pine tar frequently and generously all during the hot months and you will not need the axe or the chloroform next spring.

The concluding article on parasites that attack the outside of sheep will appear in this column next week.

long white aprons, presided at the serving tables.

Rice, president of the association as well as the host for the picnic, had butchered one of his best 1,000 pound heifers for the occasion and consigned 600 pounds of choice beef to the barbecue pit for the occasion.

Most of the guests had packed picnic lunches with everything except the meat course—that they got at the barbecue—and spread their lunches under the trees.

B. M. Anderson, assistant secretary of the American Hereford Association, came from Kansas City to the outing and L. P. McCann, secretary of the Ohio Association, came from Columbus to give an afternoon discussion on cattle judging.

This was the seventh annual association picnic. The first three were held at the Bea-Mar Farms just west of Washington C. H. on the CCC highway.

Release of 84-year-old William F. Yott, above, from the Elgin, Ill., state hospital for the insane has revealed that he has been adjudged sane for the past 40 years and could have been released that long ago. Yott is seeking a settlement of the remainder of a $500,000 estate.

MEN IN SERVICE ARE HONORED IN MATERIAL WAY

Bouquets of War Stamps Sold on Streets Here for Special Occasion

The people of Washington C. H. and Fayette County were honoring the men in the service, Friday and Saturday, in a material way by special purchases of War Bonds and Stamps from Uncle Sam to give him just a little more money with which he can buy more for his boys in uniform.

These days had been set aside as "American Heroes Days" and two special bond and stamp promotions had been arranged. One was designed to arouse the interest of those with smaller incomes in War Stamps and the other was aimed at those who could invest larger amounts through the purchase of bonds.

Friday the first of the bouquets made of War Stamps made their appearance on the streets of the uptown section. They were offered by members of the Phi Beta Psi Sorority, an organization dedicated to civic and charitable endeavors, and now that war has come, to patriotic services.

The bouquets were made of nine 10-cent War Stamps all done up like a big vari-colored flower. Each bouquet was sold for $1 and it contained 90 cents worth of the War Stamps which could be traded in on War Bonds immediately with the payment of the cash balance or they could be pasted in the little saving books provided for them by the government. Literally hundreds of children here are now filling up their stamp books, many of which were started with regular weekly purchases at school before the summer vacation. The odd dime for the bouquets went for expenses of making them up. Carroll Halliday, one of the committee said.

Not many of the bouquets were in evidence until late Friday but they were growing common by noon Saturday. They were like a label of patriotism and were worn proudly.

The committee had laid plans for contacting members of most of civic and patriotic organizations in the city and many in the county and its villages, urging them to buy an additional bond during these two special days. To each bond purchaser was to be given a souvenir postal card to be mailed to some friend in one of the armed services telling him that the sender was backing him up by buying bonds to help buy the material of war which would make him the best equipped soldier in the world.

There was some doubt as to whether the plan could be put into one hundred percent operation with such short preparation but the committee promised to push it as rapidly as possible.

Just how many bonds and stamps were sold through this special promotion campaign was uncertain. The final check, it was said, probably could not be made for several days.

The county's quota for the two "American Heroes Days," which incidentally were being observed all over the country at the same time, was $5,000.

43 ADDITIONAL REGISTRANTS SENT TO ARMY

No Demonstration Is Held As Large Number Depart

There was no blare of trumpets or speeches when 43 additional Fayette County men started off to war Saturday morning—just embraces, kisses, tears, sobs and forced smiles as goodbyes were said by relatives and friends and the two large buses rolled out carrying their human cargo for the great adventure.

The 43 men had passed the physical tests two weeks ago and, under the new policy, had been allowed two weeks in which to shape their affairs.

The men assembled at the Selective Service Board office at 8:30 and left shortly before 10 A. M.

Acting Corporal Roy Evans, Jr., was in charge of the contingent, having been named when the men passed their physical tests recently.

Several more men, who were passed by the examining board, will be inducted within a short time.

A group of colored men and another large contingent of other registrants will be called to the colors soon, but so far no dates have been given.

After reaching Fort Hayes the contingent will be sent to various camps and assigned to different branches of the services for which they appear to be best fitted.

WHEAT IS BEING SOLD BECAUSE FARMERS HAVE NO PLACE ELSE FOR IT

over-tired lungs, and prices slumped to the lowest levels since Monday, July 6. The May wheat contract hit a new low for the season on Friday.

Free wheat is being liquidated, grain men said, because growers have no place to store it. The crop in the southwest is large, yields in many cases have exceeded expectations, and some growers apparently are satisfied to get market prices for their wheat, it was stated.

There are other cases, however, where the bread cereal is piled on the ground awaiting the erection of storage bins in order that government loans may be made.

In the northwest, the spring wheat movement is not far off and the storage situation in that territory is also reported unfavorable. A leading Minneapolis commission and cash grain house was credited with having been on the selling side of wheat when prices sagged yesterday to lows for about the last two weeks.

The tight storage situation has raised the question of an embargo of free wheat shipments, except with permits, to major terminals.

plants in the Bellaire-to-East Liverpool district were shielded by a secret method. Burns said they were not visible from the air and that moonlight shining on the river did not disclose hidden industries.

The blackout, affecting Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania areas with a total population of 750,000, brought the death of Air Raid Warden Veigh Chronister, 45, of East Liverpool.

Chronister, a World War veteran, suffered head injuries when he fell into a deep gutter during the blackout and died in a hospital shortly after the all-clear was sounded. He was found by a fellow warden.

DRIVER HELD AFTER CRASH

Middletown Man Is Facing Charge of Driving While Drunk

Earl F. Stein, Middletown, was taken into custody by Sheriff W. H. Icenhower, about 6:45 P. M. Friday following a wreck at the Hagler curve on the Jamestown Road, seven miles northwest of this city.

A charge of driving while intoxicated was filed against him by Sheriff Icenhower, in Justice George Worrell's court and he was to be given a hearing sometime Saturday.

Stein was headed northwest and, according to Sheriff Icenhower, had swung three feet over the center line and crashed into a car driven by Claude Glass of Jamestown, who was headed toward this city.

Both autos were badly damaged and the drivers painfully but not seriously injured.

Called to investigate, Sheriff Icenhower took Stein into custody and took him before a physician to make certain that Stein was intoxicated.

EXPLOITS OF YANK AIRMEN IN MIDDLE EAST REVEALED BY THEIR NEW COMMANDER

shot down five enemy aircraft in combat and possibly have destroyed three others, Brereton said. Three American bombers have been lost in combat since operations started here.

Although there also have been some forced landings and internments in Turkey, no other casualties have been suffered except those in the three planes lost in action.

It was disclosed also that in addition to the four-engined consolidated B-24 Liberator bombers already reported in action in this theater, there also are Boeing B-17E flying fortresses.

Both types are equipped with two-stage superchargers permitting flights in the rarified atmosphere of high altitudes without material reduction in power.

MEN ARE NEEDED TO HELP PUT ON FAIR PAGEANT

Preparations for Most of Other Features Moving Along Smoothly

Preparations for the forthcoming Fair are moving along smoothly on virtually every line—with one big exception.

That exception was the Pageant spectacle, "America on Parade."

This was disclosed by T. H. Craig, Jr., the Fair Board member assigned to help the John B. Rogers Co., the producer of the pageant, in lining up the cast.

"America on Parade," he said, would be put on by something like 300 men, women and children of Washington C. H. and Fayette County.

A call for volunteers was broadcast through the Record-Herald and directly to nearly all of the organizations in the county. But, the response, Craig said, had not been all that the committee had hoped for and confidently expected.

The chief difficulty has been in getting enough men to fill the cast. This, he said, was understandable in view of the fact that more than 700 young men have gone into the service. And, he pointed out, it was such men as these—the men who are always ready and willing to do their part in any movement—that had been counted on when the pageant was first contracted for nearly nine months ago.

To add to the difficulties, Company C with a half a hundred more young men is to go to camp just at the time when the spectacle is to be presented.

Appeals to several men's organizations have been made but the drain of the service and war industries is felt in them just as it is every place else.

Just what will be done to solve this emergency situation, admittedly has the committee guessing and the directors just a little jittery. However, there have been no signs of giving up or getting faint-hearted. The problem will be solved some how and some way. All concerned are determined on that score. Meanwhile, the appeal is being repeated and the call for volunteers shouted more loudly.

The pleas are made on a patriotic basis; for it is pointed out that this particular type of pageant is recognized as important in maintaining American morale in wartime.

Meanwhile, rehearsals are going ahead in the Armory. Nearly all of the episodes with feminine characters are now beginning to take form. Mrs. Tom Bush has taken over the responsibilities of lining up the feminine contingent for the pageant.
